Construction workers are at a premium these days, not only in Penticton but throughout the province.

With hundreds of construction jobs going begging throughout B.C., three construction associations have set up a one-stop shop that allows workers to find jobs in every region.

Those organizations -- the Canadian Homebuilders Association, B.C. Road Builders Association and the Independent Contractors and Businesses Association -- have more than 650 employment opportunities.

They have launched a website -- www.bcconstructionjobstores.com -- enabling workers to register for free and search for work.

The website was designed with WCG International Consultants Ltd., the parent company of highly successful human resources programs, such as JobWave and Triumph Vocational Services.
